Annette Woods is VP Integration Planning & Portfolio for the Technology Group in global resource company BHP and lives in Perth. Her team is accountable for optimising the portfolio, performance and cost transparency of technology projects across the company, functional improvement, capability & capacity, and shared services that enable delivery. The portfolio ranges from IT services to full supply chain automation.

Annette joined BHP Billiton in 2011 and has had roles including Project Director for the AUD$6Billion Coal Port and Rail Expansion Major Capital Project in Queensland, and Head of Group Project Management where she was accountable for the Major Capital Projects' frameworks, governance and capability globally, and project performance improvement initiatives. She was a member of the BHP Group Investment Committee from 2014 to 2017 and has led a number of Independent Peer Reviews including for the South Flank project for WAIO. Annette joined the Technology team in October 2016 as VP Global Programs to lead a team accountable for transitional and transformational programs with cross functional and complex stakeholder environments.

Prior to joining BHP Billiton, Annette had senior executive roles in Newcastle and Sydney Port Corporations where she established projects delivery teams, and oversaw a portfolio of >AUD$1Billion in capital projects, asset management, commercial property, and strategic planning. Annette spent 15 years in consulting engineering as a geotechnical and environmental engineer. She has a Degree in Civil Engineering from the University of Adelaide.

To relax, Annette goes bushwalking in the Perth hills with her ten year old daughter, or heads to the outback camping. She is a passionate supporter of flexible work and promoting women's participation in senior roles, in harmony with their personal circumstances.
